

UANL

UNIVERSIDAD AUTÓNOMA DE NUEVO LEÓN

CENTRO DE INVESTIGACIÓN
Y DESARROLLO EN
CIENCIAS DE LA SALUD

Public Health

Public Health Services

- a) Elaboration of technical reports and epidemiological diagnostics and health promotion
- b) Design Surveys and Data Collection
- c) Project Assessments
- d) Workshops on Data Handling, Geographic Information Systems and Statistics for

Description

The Unit of Research on Public Health is a specialized center that produces scientific knowledge applied to this field. The Unit has human and technological resources to realize excellent qualitative and quantitative research, as well as in the field as in lab. It integrates highly trained and specialized multidisciplinary staff, and provides a space for postgraduate human capital development in any of the essential areas of public health.

Its lines of generation and production of knowledge are oriented to the field of health promotion, healthy lifestyles, determinants of health, epidemiology, environmental health, health systems and services, health economics, public policy, and migration and health. Its projects are focused on infectious and priority chronic degenerative diseases prevalent at present, influenza, respiratory diseases, obesity, diabetes, and asthma. All with emphasis on the northern border region of Mexico.

Responsible

MPH Dora Elia Cortés Hernandez

Contact

E-mail address, postal address and phone (00-52-81-13404370)
dora.cortesh@uanl.mx